

Water seller to become China's richest man

A businessman who sells bottled water is now the richest man in China. The business magazine Bloomberg named Mr Zhong Shanshan as China's richest man in its latest Billionaires Index. The magazine said Mr Zhong is worth over $58 billion. This makes him $2 billion richer than the previous number one, Jack Ma. Mr Ma founded the retail Internet giant Alibaba. Mr Zhong made his wealth from his Nongfu Spring bottled water company. He then branched out into making vaccines. He is the chairman of a vaccine manufacturer called the Beijing Wantai Biological Pharmacy. Mr Zhong is now 17th on the global rich list. It seems that he will move up that list in the future.

4

TRUE / FALSE

1. The Forbes business magazine names the man the richest in China. T / F
2. The man (Mr Zhong) is worth over $60 billion. T / F
3. Mr Zhong is worth $2 billion more than China's second wealthiest man. T / F
4. Mr Zhong also has a pharmaceutical company. T / F

BILLIONAIRE: How would you change the things below if you were a multi-billionaire? How much happier would you be?

	Change?	How Much Happier?
Job
House
Food
Friends
Hobbies
English		